The relationship between a child and his mother is imperishable. She tries to inculcate good habits in her child. She explains him the essential aspects of life like cleanliness, education, health, good manners etc.

If a child is sick or gets injured she takes utmost care of him. While doing all these things she never expects anything in return. Her only wish is to see her child becoming successful in all fields of life.

She can do anything for him or her to see this wish is fulfilled. She is always ready to work hard, no matter how many obstacles she has to face. She is never partial to her children. Her love and affection is equally distributed amongst her children. It is because of her dedication, hard work and undemanding love that makes a person successful. She is the real sources of inspiration. It was Jijabai who encouraged Shivaji Maharaj to fight against the Mughal Empire. Mahatma Gandhi learnt the values like truth and non-violence from his mother.
