After Independence the Government of India passed the Industrial Policy Resolution in 1948. It laid down the pattern of mixed economy specifying the industrial field of public sector and private sector to operate. This Resolution envisaged a mixed economy as suitable basis for the future economic development of the country. Later on the Government of India passed another Industrial Policy Resolution in 1956. It firmly established the principle of mixed economy for achieving the objective of socialistic pattern of society keeping in view all this.

The sector owned, controlled and managed by the State is known as public sector. Public sector includes strategic industries such as arms and ammunition, production of atomic energy whose development would be the exclusive responsibility of the State. The state is also responsible for the establishment of basic and key industries, such as coal, iron and steel aircraft manufacturing ship building etc. This is exclusive public sector as well.
