Discipline is the great binding force of a nation. It is the backbone of a nation. It is not something that is talent in person, something that has to be cultivated. It is a long process that starts from the family to society, from the society to the nation. It is necessary in a society and nation for the world to function smoothly and effectively. It is a valuable asset at all levels of society. Imagine a family or a school where indiscipline prevails. Children from such environments grow up being aggressive and ill mannered.

Discipline involves people in doing their duty judiciously, diligently and sincerely. It is the essence of life, whose absence results in a nation be set with anarchy and restlessness. It is necessary in every walk of life and in every activity. If there is discipline in school, a child will learn to behave and follow the rules that are set by schools. It is a teacher's task in school the parents role at home a managers need in a company to inculcate the importance and sense of discipline in the citizens.

For most adults, discipline is a natural quality that comes naturally. They should set good examples for youngsters to emulate them. Children and teenagers are swayed by popular trends and styles which distract them from their path of higher progress. So they have to be disciplined to move on the right path. They therefore need guidance from elders, teachers and parents.

Discipline is born of a sense of responsibility among people. That is why European nations, and some Asian countries like Japan and Singapore, where you see a lot of discipline among their people, are so prosperous and powerful.
